Truck Drivers Strike

Please note that the strike has gone ahead and the situation on the ground is serious. Trucks have been set alight and protestors are blocking major trucking routes. Trucks were burned in Kokstad and Ashburton over the weekend, and 2 more in Durban in the early hours of this morning. The below image is of the remnants of a truck that was set alight between Middleburg and Stoffberg.

In response, several trucking companies have halted operations for today until the situation has calmed. Driver safety, as well as the safety of trucks and cargo is of paramount importance. We are in contact with clients whose deliveries will be directly affected, but please note that there may be continuing delays due to the congestion caused at the port with containers not being collected, as well as the trucking companies having to deal with backlogs once the situation returns to normal.

If you have any specific concerns regarding your cargo during this time, please don't hesitate to contact us.
